Student Letter

My name is Zehao, but you can call me Jackie. I am 17 years old and I am from China. I am a thoughtful, calm and inquisitive boy. At the same time, I am also an energetic, sports-loving person with a wide range of interests. When I encounter difficult problems, I do not rush to make statements, but patiently observe and quiet independent thinking. I will pay more attention to how to solve problems, explore the essence behind the incident, and try to use critical thinking to look at problems from multiple angles.

I am very interested in mathematics and science. Mathematics, in particular, has expanded my logical reasoning ability and spatial imagination thinking. I actively participate in international mathematics competitions and have achieved excellent results in the American Mathematics Competition, the Duke Math Meet China Boot Camp Competition Evaluation, and the American Regions Mathematics League Local Mathematica Competition. In these competitions, I have exercised my ability to think carefully and explore deeply. When I encounter a problem, I will first think independently, meditate hard, and try to solve it in various ways. In addition, I will seek the help of teachers, classmates or fathers to exchange discussions with everyone, and finally solve mathematical problems together will be very exciting and full of satisfaction.
